The first two steps are relatively straightforward. The third step involves identifying the specific components of the system that are most likely to cause problems. This can be done by reviewing the system's design specifications, user manuals, and other relevant documentation. Once the potential causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action to address them. This may involve implementing new procedures, training staff, or upgrading equipment. Finally, it is important to monitor the system's performance over time to ensure that the problem has been resolved and to prevent future occurrences.

This can be done by reviewing the system's design specifications, user manuals, and other relevant documentation. Once the potential causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan to address them. This plan should take into account the resources available and the time constraints. Finally, the plan should be implemented, and the results should be monitored to ensure that the problem has been resolved.
